OFFICERS LOCATE IVAN HEUPEL

HUNTED FOR TWO YEARS FOR ENTICING AWAY GIRL

Ivan Heupel, also known as Frank White, is in the Grand Traverse County jail held on a charge of violating the liquor law. And he is also wanted in Crawford county for enticing Laurine Christensen, a 14 year old girl, away two years ago.

Heupel had been arrested for violation of the liquor law and was out on bonds. His re-arrest came about when Kenneth Metz, an uncle of the Christensen girl by marriage to Dorothy LaBrash recognized him. Metz, who resides at Fairview in a mail carrier between Grand Rapids and Traverse City, and while making his route saw a man hiking along the road about seven miles out of Traverse City and as he passed him recognized him as the man for whom the family had been hunting for two years. He drove on to Traverse City and after unloading his mail notified police and they drove back and picked up Metz, who it is reported was evidently skipping his bonds. He was locked up in the Grand Traverse County jail and Tuesday Edgars LaBrash and other relatives drove over to Traverse City to further identify him as the man who had enticed the girl away.

Although he had been posted all over Michigan this was the first time we had seen him since July 11th, 1929, when he and the girl left Grayling. He claims to have been in Traverse City during the summer of 1929, also 1930. He is reported as telling confiding stories as to what happened to Laurine Christensen, saying that she ran away from him and he didn't know where she was. However he is to be brought to Grayling today when he will be further questioned.

Last fall the body of a woman was found in a shallow grave near the Manistee river and for a time it was thought to be the body of the Christensen girl. The body bore evidence that the person had been murdered and buried there.

HOTTEST EVER

This week's heat wave broke all previous records within the memory of our oldest residents. Monday the thermometer showed a high record of 95 in the shade. Tuesday it went to 98 in the shade and Wednesday it reached one higher—99. At 6:00 a.m. Wednesday it was 75, which was the lowest for the 24 hours, and at about 3:00 p.m. it reached 99. These reports are taken from the records of the official government thermometer at the Fish Hatchery.

Other places about town, where algholthermometers are used, the afternoon temperature on the Central Drug Store building, in the shade, reached 109.

Reuben S. Babbitt says that this has been the hottest weather he had experienced in his whole life. "I have seen an occasional hot night but never saw a period of hot weather like this before in my life, he says.

Well, it certainly was hot and everyone realized it. Good old Lake Margrethe relieved the distress for hundreds who sought its bathing beaches. The river too afforded much relief, and many resorted to auto rides. And there were hundreds who did the best they could by seeking the coolest places about the home, which were far from comfortable, and many a one spent restless nights.

All this followed a steady downpour of rain beginning Saturday night and continuing to Sunday noon, during which time about 3 inches of water fell.

Today—Thursday—is much cooler and comfortable and it looks as though the present heat wave had been broken.

MICHIGAN AFFAIRS

BY A. H. GANSER

Conservation in Michigan. Michigan sportsmen and conservationists held their annual conclave at Mio on June 25. The presence of many state officials and prominent men in the financial and industrial affairs of Michigan, attested the keen interest taken in conservation. Similar keen interest was taken by the 1931 legislature. The law makers had before them much detailed information directly bearing on this conservation problem. There was the U.S. census information secured in 1930. This showed that towns of 2,500 or more now held 56.2 per cent of all our people. In 1900 this was 40%; in 1910 it increased to 45.8, and in 1920 to 51.4 per cent. In 1930 the cities over 100,000 in population held 29.6 per cent of all our people.

This trend from the country to the cities accounts in part for the nine million acres of land now in the hands of the state. For some years now, Michigan has striven valiantly to put these millions of acres to good use. Burnt over areas naturally lend themselves only to reforestation, game and fish preservation and recreation. The best and quickest return for this investment of time and money is found in the constantly increasing summer tourist business in Michigan. The legislature has for some years now voted $100,000 annually for advertising Michigan's summer recreational attractions. The several tourist bureaus have to match this state fund, dollar for dollar, out of their private income. With this joint fund, the tourist bureaus flood the states to the east, south and west with attractive booklets, setting forth the magic regions "where the summer trails begin." In my business travels over many of these states, have found folks away down in Dixieland around New Years, eagerly planning their summer vacation in Michigan.

Where Summer Trails Begin. Anticipation is always one of life's greatest pleasures. And many of these southern folks knew more of Michigan's "tall and whispering pines and lake-bound shores" than did some natives. Distance does lend enchantment. And if this was to be their first visit to Michigan, they listened much to those who had been north "in the good old summer time." It is now, and the Michigan they hoped to find, had their first bats, and the first three men up got on, but were put out for leaving their bases before the ball had been hit. Johnny Johnson, manager, held his head, and watched his men until the third inning when he made a change in the box. He put in Schmidt, and how he mowed them down! "Spike" and Cody let in two runs by dropping a fly each, and you should have seen our manager go after them for that. It looks like he is going to farm them out to Bucks siding but he has not said anything yet. Well we lost the BIG BROWN JUG, and you know how the Grayling band goes after brown jugs.

The boys Grayling used included Herb Goetho, Middle LaMotte, Spike McNeven, Howard Schmidt, Ollie Cody, Frank Sales, Al Clark, Marius Hanson, Clarence Sherman and Sam Smith.

It was one big get-together and demonstrated that the Bay-Straits League is up and going.

SPORTSMEN HAVE BIG MEETING AT MIO

GOVERNOR AND MANY OTHER
NOTABLES AMONG CROWD

One of the largest crowds of sportsmen ever assembled in this part of Michigan at any one time was the one that was in attendance at the Bay-Straits League meeting held at Mio last Thursday. It is estimated that there were about 5,000 in all, with Governor Brucker foremost among the visitors, John Gilispie of Detroit, Ben East and others. Grayling was well represented by the Grayling band and many local citizens drove over for the day.

The day's program opened with a parade of three bands, with Grayling Citizens Band leading in full dress. The Beaverton High School band came next and then the Mio band brought up the rear. This started the ball rolling and from then on it is reported there was something doing all the time to keep the crowd interested.

Fine speeches on conservation problems were given by the Governor and others and during the afternoon a sports program was carried out. Clarence Johnson of Grayling was chairman of this and came in for a lot of favorable comment for the fine way the entire program was carried out. The one big feature was the ball game played between the Grayling and Mio bands, the latter winning the big Brown jug. This is how it was told to us:

Grayling had their first bats, and the first three men up got on, but were put out for leaving their bases before the ball had been hit. Johnny Johnson, manager, held his head, and watched his men until the third inning when he made a change in the box. He put in Schmidt, and how he mowed them down! "Spike" and Cody let in two runs by dropping a fly each, and you should have seen our manager go after them for that. It looks like he is going to farm them out to Bucks siding but he has not said anything yet. Well we lost the BIG BROWN JUG, and you know how the Grayling band goes after brown jugs.

ASK DEPT. TO FINISH M-76

ABOUT 75 ATTEND MEETING AT KALKASKA

Several of our citizens, including the members of the county board of supervisors, attended a meeting held in Kalkaska last week Friday, for the purpose of furthering the construction of highway M-76. State Highway Commissioner Dillman and Division Engineer Burridge and other highway officials were present.

The business matters were taken up at a "round-table" discussion following the dinner at the hotel. A number of possible routes between Traverse City and Kalkaska were discussed and there seemed to be a variety of opinions, but all were unanimous in the opinion that the route between Grayling and Kalkaska was of first importance. It would give the people of Grayling an outlet to the west that has been needed for many years, and also accommodate the hundreds of tourists who wish to make the western part of the state from this region. And the business interests of Traverse City with its great fruit industry would receive added patronage from this section of the state.

The distance from Grayling to Kalkaska is 28 miles and the average driving speed is about 20 miles per hour, and in some places even the speed could be called reckless. The mileage to Traverse City is about 50 miles.

The State Highway Department has understood the need of this highway for the past ten years. It seems that one thing and another has stood in the way of putting it thru. However it does appear that after waiting all these years that this project should be at the top of the list among those on the state highway program.

The largest number of licensees were sold in Kent County where agents reported 8,248. Marquette County was second with 5,878 licensees and Wayne was third with 4,109.

The figures show that the largest percentage of trout licenses, based on the total population of the county, were purchased in counties in which trout fishing is best, Oscoda, Roscommon and Crawford counties, for instance, have noted trout streams, and it was in these three counties that the largest proportion of licenses were sold. In Oscoda county 303.5 licenses were sold for every 1,000 residents of the county. In Roscommon it was 300.4 licenses for every 1,000 people and in Crawford county it was 290.2. While a few fishermen from other counties might have purchased licenses in these counties, it is believed that the number is high enough to make any appreciable difference in the figures.

TREE SURGEON SAYS

Water your trees during this hot dry weather.

Night time is the best time to do the watering, but the city ordinance prohibits watering after 9 p.m. The next best time is in the evening from six-thirty or seven to nine o'clock.

Turn the hose on slow and let the water run on each tree for about three hours. If you have many trees a lot of hose will be necessary or a sprayer which will reach several trees will do a fairly good job.

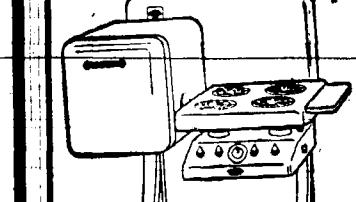

The average size tree will in hot weather use up about thirty barrels of water a day so don't try to skimp on water because a small amount of water will start rapid evaporation and then if there is not sufficient supply, wilting and even death may result.

Exceedingly hot weather watering should be done every other night. Take the tree watering seriously. The soil hereabouts is very porous and therefore will not hold moisture very long so the need for plentiful and often watering can not be neglected.

AM. LEGION NOTES

BY A. H. GANSER

Just Fifteen Years Ago.

Independence Day, July 4, 1916, found America unusually appreciative of our happy continental situation. Over 3,000 miles of ocean separated us from the World war and Europe. Over here, every American was still entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. In Europe the war and its sheer necessities had robbed all the people in the warring nations of these elementary rights. And the neutral nations anywhere in the wide world found some of these World war restraints and limitations. Our great globe had become relatively smaller, as the genius of man created speedy steamboats and airplanes, telegraph, telephone and now wireless. The whole world was to learn in the crucible of war, that what hurt one continent affected all the others. For the time being, the financial and material resources of the great nations at war could command in these neutral nations, supplies, arms and munitions sorely needed by the allies. So this 4th of July, 1916, found our nation most prosperous. Most folks were too busy capitalizing the misfortune of Europe to notice much thought to the trend of things international. Some 275,000 National Guardsmen found themselves in training camps, actively preparing to teach Mexico and Pancho Villa that there was a limit even to American pacifism and patience. The orators on this Independence Day were still quoting George Washington, warning his countrymen against mixing in the age old hates and fears of Europe and Asia. President Carranza and Mexico were warned against provoking a war calamity. Americans were warned against letting their kinship for one or the other of the warring nations in Europe overshadow their own Americanism. But few indicated any fear of our own entry into the World war within ten months.

The Allies Seek Victory.

And the World war news on this 4th of July, 1916, so favored the allies that the happenings of the next ten months were mercifully hidden from our celebrating Americans. For on July 1, 1916, the great British victory drive had started along the Somme river front. For six months Britain had been massing her guns, munitions and men along that front. For a few hours on May 30 and 31, 1916, the British war council had forced a naval debacle in the battle off Jutland. But when the German fleet again retired behind the land defenses of Heligoland and Kiel, the British troops in France were given increased support. The crown prince's failure at Verdun helped along the British offensive. For the Germans had massed their guns, munitions and shock troops on the Verdun front. For a few days in February it looked bad for Verdun and the allied cause. But as the siege progressed with few worth while gains and these at tremendous cost, the British could see in Verdun a real advantage for their own victory drive. Then the Russian offensive with two million men, from the Prigat marshes down to the border of Roumania, quickly drove back the 600,000 unwilling Austrian fighters; the German high command had to rush to their aid with some of their best troops from France. At the same time, the Austrian offensive against Italy by way of Brustein, from which Berlin extracted some helpful results, fell down. The Italians were about to take the offensive, to recapture the defences along the Adige and Brenta river front. Salonic in Greece was menacing Turkey and Bulgaria, while the Russians were coming through Armenia, and another British force was coming from India toward Jerusalem, to wipe out Townsend's survivor at El Alamein on April 29, 1916. Roumania was expected to enter the war on the side of the allies. Germany had held in the west and won all through 1915 in the east. On May 31, 1916, her fortunes were at high tide. But now, in the first weeks of July, the tide turned.

Tommy at the Somme Battle.

On July 1, 1916, the British attacked the German defensive positions on the Somme river front. They had relatively more guns and munitions than the Germans had at Verdun. Along a front of twenty miles they sent over a barrage of shells of all sizes, mixed with gas poison, in unheard of numbers. On their right, for ten miles, the French were making a less noisy, but quite helpful effort. Gen. Haig had three times as many men on the Somme, as the British had at the battle of Mons. He had ten times as many guns and twenty times as much ammunition. But the Germans had warning of the coming attack. They held the very front line with machine gunners, while their reserves rested secure in dugouts or on the reverse slopes of favorable ground. Their artillery knew the range to the British lines to the last yard. Airplane photographs gave both sides the terrain in detail. The British sent 250,000 men into this battle, while the French sent 150,000 on the actual fighting front. All night long the British and French had sent over their preliminary barrage. At daylight some 400,000 infantrymen on this front of thirty miles, went forward to break through the enemy wire and trench lines. Official source records today indicate that the Germans had dodged the artillery fire. The moment the British and French artillery stopped, to allow the infantry to charge, the Germans came out of their dugouts with their light machine guns. At the same time German artillery laid down a counter barrage, preventing infantry support from going forward. In all military history there has never been a more prompt and bloody check than that which stopped the British between Conneuxcourt and Fricourt. They lost more than 45,000 men in killed, wounded and captured in a few hours. Slight gains on a mile front netted 3,500 prisoners and some war material. Like Verdun, the Somme battle quickly resolved itself into a siege operation.

TO COLLEGE OR NOT?

"As I see it, the problem of college or not is strictly a personal one, depending on what the youth has or hasn't in his head," writes Editor-in-Chief Nelson Antine Crawford in The Household Magazine for July. "Frankly," he continues, "there is no use sending a boy or girl to college unless he has brains. And by brains I mean intellect—ability in learning and interest in learning. Our conception of learning has fortunately broadened in recent years. We no longer confine it to mathematics, rhetoric, and the classics. We value engineering, agriculture, law, medicine, home economics, and scores of other more or less technical subjects."

"A boy or girl may be deeply interested in one of these fields and not care at all about French poetry or the political systems of central Europe. He will be benefited by studying his specialty—along with some more broadening subjects—in college. And of course there still is found the youth who has not found a bent for a specific vocation but who is interested in everything intellectual who really enjoys studying and thinking. Both of these classes will be tremendously benefited by college training. But in my estimation, the young person who is not interested in any vocation and who does not care for knowledge itself does not belong in college and his parents are wasting their money in sending him there."

Uncle Eben

"Of course," said Uncle Eben, "it's fine to be yuh own boss. But don't tonight, son, dit de position is ginter leave you 'sponsible fo' payin' all de interest in case a mortgage happens." —Washington Star.

Lloyd George is "friendly" to the suggestion that interest on war debts be called off for a year. In fact, he is the most friendly man you ever saw. He is willing not only to drop the interest for a year, but to chuck over the entire principal, for good and all. This is a rare opportunity for Uncle Sam to win expressions of whole-hearted friendship. All that he has to do is to buy them, like any other commodity.

Naughty Impulse That Was Foiled by Chivalry

Among the good stories told by Miss Jane Harrison, the famous lecturer in classical archaeology at Newnham College, Cambridge, England, in her autobiography, "Reminiscences of a Student's Life," is this one:

Miss Harrison was for a time a magistrate, and on one occasion there appeared before the bench a certain prisoner who, it seems, had used peculiar foul language. Instead of repeating it the clerk had had a typed copy made, which was circulated on the bench. Miss Harrison says:

"The unknown to me has always had an irresistible lure, and all my life I have had a curiosity to know what really bad language consisted of. In the studies at home I had heard an occasional 'd--n' from the lips of a grown, but that was not very interesting."

"Now was the chance of my life. The paper reached the old gentleman next me. I had all but stretched out an eager hand. He bent over me in a fatherly way and said:

"I am sure you will not want to see this."

"I was going to read it, but sixty years of sex subservience had done their work. I summoned my last blush, cast down my eyes, and said:

"Oh, no! No. Thank you so much!"

"With chivalry he bowed and pocketed the script," Kansas City Times.

ISLANDS NOW AMERICAN

Wake Island was acquired by the United States in 1858, as a result of the Spanish-American war, and was ceded to this country by Spain under the treaty of Paris, which ended the war. Midway Islands are now a part of the Hawaiian group and under the jurisdiction of the Hawaiian government. They were discovered by Capt. C. C. Brooks in the ship "Gambar" on July 5, 1859, and officially taken possession of in the name of the United States on August 25, 1857, by Captain Reynolds of the U. S. S. Lackawanna. Baker Island was taken possession of in the name of the United States in 1858 by an American named Michael Baker, who first discovered it in 1832. Howland Island was discovered by George E. Neeley in 1842, and officially possessed in the name of the United States in 1857.

IN OLD CELTIC LANDS

Of all the interesting trips in France, Brittany should be included, especially the south coast, with its sea resorts. This is the land of the "Pardon," those semi-religious and semi-pagan festivals, when the villagers dress the costumes and play the ceremonies which go back to the days of the dolmen and menhir of their wild ancestors. Paris—Nantes—Sauvage—St. Nazaire is the route to follow, and the great Pardon centers are at Auray, St. Malo, Quiberon, Quimper, Douarnenez, Plougasnec and St. Anna-in-Padou, where the most important Pardon in Brittany is held on the last Saturday and Sunday in August. These old Celtic lands of France have a fascination different from the rest of France.

AND HE FLED

A golfer who has devoted the better part of the last five summers to the pursuit of the little white sphere was the happy recipient on his birthday of a set of expensive matched clubs. The first thing he did was to summon a companion in the sport and boast (as only golfers know how to boast over such an acquisition) openly before him.

"Ah," exclaimed the friend tartly, "that's a wonderful set of clubs. Now all you have to do is to learn how to play the game." And he fled from the house followed by a flood of epithets pronounced as only golfers know how to pronounce them.—Springfield Union.

Formal opening of an 188-bed hospital, built at cost of $240,000 in the United States Veterans Bureau Hospital group at Camp Custer, will take place July 14th. Bids on a new administration building to cost $100,000 will be opened in Washington July 19. The present administration building will be converted into a hospital.—The Rose City Review.

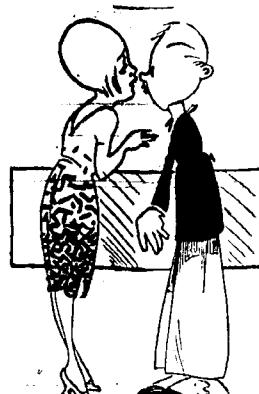

The railroads, somewhat hard pressed by the competition of other means of transportation, would like to have a fifteen per cent increase in freight rates. All that the Interstate Commerce Commission has to do is to figure out some arrangement whereby both railroads and truck lines can operate at a profit without decreased efficiency, and without increased cost to the shippers. Clearly, nothing but a little head work is required.

The Log Office Says

Interesting bits of news and comment about Northeastern Michigan gathered by the E. M. T. A.

Doctors, lawyers, merchants, laborers—the roads of Northeastern Michigan are thronged with their cars. A doctor from Cleveland meets a lawyer from Detroit in Alpena and the talk of their schooldays together flies fast—a banker from Duluth meets a merchant from Rogers City in a small hotel in East Tawas and they talk about the boss they both worked for in Toledo—and so it goes. Eastern Michigan is peopled this year with a cross section of the nation's populace.

Thousands have been here before—thousands are journeying through for the first time. Resort owners, inn employees, park attachés are lending help and information but the native Michigander not directly concerned with the tourists' needs is the one who should make a pleasant business of making visitors happy they came, glad to stay and eager to come again.

Here's one to ponder. A publicity man for Havana, Cuba, during the winter labors in New York, part of the summer, for some years has been vacationing

LOST HIS GOLDFISH

An alibi is a good thing if you can make it stick. Bert Green, LaSalle, tried one on a conservation officer recently, and while it makes a good story it didn't help Bert much. Green was caught dip netting in a closed stream in Monroe County. He claimed that one of his goldfish had got loose and he was trying to find it. Green paid a fine and costs in justice court of $17.25.

Mr. II.—Nonsense, it hasn't said a word yet.

COULD OVERRULE

"Does your girl object to you putting your arm around her waist?"

"Yes; but I get around that all right."

CAR TOO SMALL

"Do you go around in her car with her?"

"Go round in it? Why, my dear, it's so small you can't move in your seat."

COULD BE FIXED

"It's false, Marie, as false as Neptune's beard in a beauty pageant."

"Oh, I don't know. I think he's clean—like a head of fresh shirt-front."

"And as tight as a wire band around a bootlegger's waist."

"No! You know if he would take you out, you would be as happy as a red ant on a plenty pile."

"Bored as an aviator in a tricycle, you mean."

"Well, he's prominent."

"Yes—like knots in Scotland."

"Elderly—poor."

"I know—but he wears his age as gracefully as a '26 new-topper."

"Huh? Ha?"

Miss Wise—See my lawyers and I think it can be arranged.

SHOULD KNOW TIME

"What time is it?"

"I'll ask my dog."

"Ask your dog?"

Artistic Treasures in Cities of Sunny Spain

Exalting one of the major cities of any country above the others is always dangerous, but in the case of Spain few would question the right of its glorious and varied monuments of architecture to a pre-eminent position. More fortunate in this respect than other Continental countries, its Gothic and Renaissance masterpieces of art are supplemented by the mosques and palaces left as a heritage to the nation by the Moorish occupation of southern Spain.

Romance and magic are in the very mention of the Spanish place names and treasures of art. The storied Alhambra and the stately Alcazar of Granada, the Mosque of Cordoba, the Pillar of Zaragoza, the massive Cathedral of Burgos, with its lovely towers; Seville's magnificent cathedral, the famed Giralda and the Alcazar, the immensity and beauty of the Monastery of the Escorial, the richness of the facade of Santander's cathedral, the University of Salamanca, the Roman aqueduct of Segovia, the arabesque treasures of Valencia, the city of the Cid, the royal palace of Madrid and the splendor of Toledo's cathedral. All these and many more are gems of art and symbols of a semi-history. Their beauty is riveted only by their surprising variety.—Illustration.

Playing the Game
Through

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

"The water hole on John D. Rockefeller's private course," a newspaper editorial says, "with a one hundred and twenty yard carry, also offers a chance to learn something important." John D. never used to play it. But the knowledge that the hole was part of the course and that until it he played it, he would not be playing the game, practiced long and hard until he was its master. Now he shoots that hole regularly and likes it. Men often like best that which has given them the hardest struggle.

One should not be satisfied until he plays the game through. One hears occasionally from fellows who have never even ridden a sawhorse and who would probably fall off it if they attempted it, rather caustic criticism of the horsemanship of the prince of Wales. They are as proud of their statements as the man is of his horse. The real facts are, however, that he is an unusually fearless and daring rider. Hazards which less courageous and skillful equestrians would avoid he takes a chance on. He never rides around a ditch or a fence because it presents difficulties. He plays the game through straight ahead to the finish and takes the consequences even if that be a tumble. It is this sportsmanlike quality which makes the prince of Wales the best loved man in England. He doesn't hesitate at hazards.

Walter was pretty far behind the bunch in the mile run in the final handicap as was also Harding. Harding saw that he had no chance of winning and dropped out and threw himself down on the grass without finishing the last lap.

"What's the use?" he asked when some one inquired why he withdrew at that point in the race. "I was outdistanced and I saw no good reason for wasting myself."

Not so with Walter. He pushed on until the end, took the ridicule of the crowd steadily. He believed in playing the game "all out" even if his horse is not a good one. Some day he will do better; some day if he persists he will come in with the top four or ahead of it.

Get well, Walter, we hope.

Isn't it possible that life for a lot of Americans is hard today because it has been a bit too soft?"—Country Home.

Hamilton and Burr

The rivalry between Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr began when they were still law students. Alexander Hamilton won his study and passed the bar examination first. Later when the election of Burr and Jefferson was thrown into the house of representatives, Hamilton, although disliking Jefferson, drew his influence in favor of him and secured the defeat of Aaron Burr. Still later when Burr ran for the office of governor of New York and was defeated, he blamed this defeat on Hamilton and challenged him to a duel.

End of Famous Pirate

Edward Teach or Thatch (1718), an Anglo-American pirate, popularly known as Blackbeard, became widely known and feared for his robberies and atrocities throughout the West Indies and along the coast of Carolina and Virginia. At Pungo Point, N. C., in 1718, he was attacked by two small ships under the command of Lieutenant Maynard of the British navy, and by a successful ruse led to board the vessels, when he and several of his men were killed.—Washington Star.

Age-old Tradition

The groundhog superstition is the American descendant of a tradition ages old. Its foundation is the general truth that a mild February is apt to be followed by change and a chilly spring. Our pagan ancestors were more familiar with the habits of hibernating animals than they were with calendars and the premature return of these creatures became a forecast of bad weather. The notion persisted in Christian days and attached itself to Candlemas day—February 2.

The State Highway department has spent a lot of money to beautify and build up its highways in the county and there is a lot of complaint over the fact that cattle running at large are destroying a lot of the new sodding work. Most of the sod was laid last summer and fall and has hardly become solid as yet. Cattle trampling over it break down the squares and do a lot of damage. Supt. Cliff says that the work was expensive and claims that the seeding and labor cost the state more money than the value of all the cows in the county combined. provided a uniform road sign system for townships and villages, under the direction of the state highway department. Michigan's summer trails will be safer than ever before. And more beautiful. For the experts on landscaping in the state highway department are adding all nature in greeting our summer visitors, dressed up in our best.

Michigan's Conservation Hopes.

Tourist travel this year in Michigan will find much highway building on main trunk lines. But the detour roads will be safeguarded and marked like main thoroughfares. The word "detour" has lost its terrors hereabouts. Primitive forests, wild life, lakes and streams are the summer delight of tourists, especially from the large cities. Forest fires are less menacing than last year. The weather has been more favorable. Michigan now has 1,423 miles fire lines within our 13 state forests, besides safeguarding commercial forest holdings for the common good. These fire lanes must be continually harrowed to make them really effective. Last year these tractors covered 4,965 miles in this fire lane work. Many observation towers gave warning of incipient forest fires. This year the conservation department has had its expected income reduced by Gov. Brucker to a point where the force of fire-fighters will have to be reduced, and field work generally consolidated. The original requests included: land division units $27,700; forest fire division, $283,600; geological survey, $61,895; reforestation, $142,100; state parks, $97,776; fisheries, $175,252; land economic survey, $14,528; damage done by bears, $8,030; stream control, $21,597; Mackinac Island, $29,854, or a total of $906,423.56. To save the state property tax, Gov. Brucker hoped to get a rod license of $1 from every fisherman, with higher license for trout and hunting, but the legislators claimed the rod fishermen received no aid from the conservation department, hence it was a nuisance tax undesired. The legislature did appropriate $1,042,592.76 for the various divisions of Michigan's conservation department in House Bill 422, May 5, 1931. Gov. Brucker cut off $60,000 to bring down the property tax totals. The above total includes the 25 cents per acre to counties and the 10 cents per acre to be paid locally by the state on state lands.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Hoover's Plan for War Debt Moratorium Not Wholly Liked by France—Aviator Fly Across Atlantic Ocean.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S plan for a one year moratorium on reparations and war debts probably will go through unless France blocks it. Hailed with cheers by most of the world, the proposition was received rather coldly and suspiciously by the French. Ambassador Walter E. Edge got busy with the government leaders in Paris and worked hard to gain their acceptance of the plan, but the best he could obtain from the cabinet was a note carrying modified approval. This, forwarded through him to Washington, induced Mr. Hoover's initiation but insisted that Germany must continue payment of the "unconditional" annuities as provided under the Young plan, though France would waive the conditional payments for a year inasmuch as America will waive war debt payments for the same period. The unconditional annuities France is willing to turn back to Germany through the Bank of International Settlements if the money is needed.

Great Britain and Germany had already given the plan their full approval, and Mussolini sent word that Italy accepted it unequivocally. Belgium, which is as jealous of her reputation as France was expected to follow the French lead.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon arrived in Paris and immediately began conversations at the Quai d'Orsay in the hope of reconciling the plans of Mr. Hoover and of the French cabinet. The President early was assured of the support of the leaders of both parties and all factions in congress, and during the week he canvassed the entire membership of both houses in order to learn just what position they would take in the matter. The result was not made public but it was presumed he had assurances of far more than enough votes to put over what even legislation will be necessary.

There is no preference that Mr. Hoover's plan is wholly altruistic. It is designed to help bring to an end the existing depression by reviving trade and business and if it succeeds in the U.S. the United States would be expected to reap its fair share of the benefits. That's more putting forward of the proposition was at least temporarily beneficial was shown by the new buoyancy in the stock exchanges.

PITTED the proposed reparations and war debt moratorium really turns to business tide toward prosperity. It is the opinion of Ogden L. Mills, under-secretary of the treasury. He asserted in Washington that the loss of about $250,000,000 which this country will not collect next year if the plan goes through would be more than made up in a short time if it brought about a return of better times.

"From indications thus far," Mr. Mills said, "it appears that the world at large looks upon the American proposal as a hopeful business factor.

Stocks have risen in the big exchanges. With better business the tax receipts of the treasury will increase."

Mr. Mills declined to predict whether it will be necessary to recommend a tax increase to the next congress to supply revenues for operating the government during the next fiscal year.

He pointed out, however, that a postponement of war debts payments would cut the treasury receipts during the next year by more than $250,000,000.

This year's deficit, on the basis of income tax returns, probably will not greatly exceed $550,000,000.

Up to the close of June 19, total expenditures chargeable against ordinary receipts were $4,116,000,000, as compared with an estimated expenditure for the fiscal year of $4,335,000,000.

If business conditions improve treasury officials anticipate an immediate raise in the income tax and other receipts. Commerce department officials said that they were hopeful better financial conditions abroad would be reflected in American foreign commerce.

FIRST of this year's crop of American transatlantic flyers to hop off from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland were Wiley Post and Harold Gatty in the single motored cable plane Winnie Mae. Their destination was Berlin, and though they did not make the flight to the German capital without stop, they did succeed in getting safely across the ocean. They landed at the Sealand airfield near Chester, England, after circling over the city of Bangor, Wales. Post was the pilot of the plane throughout the flight and Gatty acted as navigator. They were heard from only once on the way across the liner Drottningholm picking up their radio call. Post and Gatty set out to make the circuit of the globe in ten days. They remained at Chester only long enough to refuel and eat lunch, and then flew to Berlin and thence onward toward Moscow.

Only a few hours after Post and Gatty hopped off, Otto Hillig and Holger Holmstrom started from Harbor Grace in a big, heavily loaded Bellanca plane with the hope of making a nonstop flight to Copenhagen, Denmark. But they lost their way and landed at worse than in Mexico and Russia, and that 9,000 organizations of the Duke's followers have been given the task of persecuting him. However, he declared his faith in Providence and said the bishops in Italy had informed him that there was increasing unrest in the country because of the "interferable surveillance, odious espionage, secret reports and continuous menaces."

Mussolini in his latest note to the Vatican was rather conciliatory, but the duke was firm in his attitude toward the Catholic Action societies. He left the fundamental issue which has always existed as to the respective rights of the church and state in educational matters exactly as it has always been.

MEXICO's troubles with the Catholic church have been renewed by the action of the Vera Cruz state government in restricting the number of priests conducting services to one for every 100,000 inhabitants. Priests in Mexico are warning their congregations that another religious conflict is likely. They said priests in Vera Cruz had been harshly treated, and that a few had been killed.

These remarks are believed to have been inspired by a riot at Huatulco, in the state of Vera Cruz, during the burial of Father Felipe Cano, who died from injuries he had sustained in a clash between liberals and Catholics at Chavaxtha.

Spain is settling down to normality under the republican rule, but the subject of the status of Catalonia is not yet settled. Alexander Leroux, minister of foreign affairs, went to Barcelona, center of the stormy province, the other day to sound out the intentions of Col. Francisco Macia Bourbon and his Catalan following who demand rather more than autonomy for Catalonia. It has been considered likely that Leroux will be the first premier under the new constitution which will be drafted by the constituent cortes.

Restoration of the Spanish monarchy, with himself on the throne, is the ambition of Don Jaime de Bourbon, the Carlist pretender, who is now sixty years old but vigorous and full of schemes. It is reported that Gen. Martinez Anido, his chief military aid, has gathered an army in northern Spain and expects to overthrow the republican regime. But pretenders seldom have any luck in such ventures, and the government at Madrid probably isn't worried by this threat.

PLAMES starting on a wharf at St. John, N. B., swept the waterfront and practically ruined the entire western section of the port. The property damage was believed to exceed $10,000,000, and several lives were lost. The conflagration raged for hours, destroying docks, grain elevators and several steamships. The greatest loss was suffered by the harbor commission, federal property valued at $3,500,000 being burned.

FOR the first time in the history of Ohio a woman is to be electrocuted. At Jefferson, Mrs. Julia Maude Lowther of Ashtabula, twenty-three years old, was sentenced to die in the electric chair at the state penitentiary on October 2 for the murder of James Clark Smith, her employer and the wife of the man she loved. Smith, twice convicted of complicity in the killing, also is under a death sentence.

FOR the first time in its history Rotary International has elected a European as president. At the annual convention of the organization in Vienna the delegates selected Sydney Woodroffe Pscall of London, England, to succeed President Almon E. Roth of California. Rufus Fisher Chapin of Chicago was re-elected for his eighth term as treasurer.

CHIANG KAISHEK, head of the Chinese Nationalist government, has begun a great effort to exterminate the communists and bandits. He concentrated about 200,000 troops in Kiangsi province and held a war council in Nanchang at which the military operations were all planned. If these succeed, he believes it will put an end to resistance, both political and armed, to the Nanking government, for he maintains the loyalty of the population in mid-western Canton.

NO ROD LICENSE REQUIRED EXCEPT FOR TROUT

Residents of Michigan are not required to have a license to take any species of fish in season, except Brook, Brown and Rainbow trout. Recent legislative discussion concerning general rod license led many people to the impression that Michigan now has such a license. The bill was not adopted and regulations so far as needs for fishing licenses are concerned remain as they have in the past.

The Fish Division of the Conservation Department has been receiving scores of inquiries as to whether a license is necessary to fish for other species than trout. The church is being persecuted in Italy
